

The World Health Organization said in a statement Wednesday that it had received reports that a Chinese passenger had been diagnosed with the new coronavirus in Thailand. Thai health officials said the patient was currently undergoing treatment and rehabilitation.