

Since January 17, five cases of respiratory tract symptoms such as fever have been found in Wenzhou, Zhoushan, Taizhou and Hangzhou in Zhejiang Province, China's Zhejiang provincial health and Health Commission said on Monday. At present, they are all isolated and treated in designated hospitals, with stable condition and close contacts undergoing medical observation.

"The laboratory test results of patients are being rechecked according to the regulations. Once confirmed, they will be released to the society in time." The website of the health care Commission published a press release.

A total of 136 new cases of pneumonia infected with the new coronavirus died in Wuhan, China, Monday morning, the Health Commission announced. In addition, Guangdong Provincial Health and Health Commission and Daxing District Health and Health Commission of Beijing respectively confirmed that one case and two cases of new coronavirus infected pneumonia were confirmed for the first time in Guangdong and Beijing respectively.

As of 22, 19, Wuhan has reported 198 cases of pneumonia with new coronavirus infection, 25 cases have been cured and 3 cases have died. At present, 170 cases are still in hospital, including 126 cases of light illness, 35 cases of severe illness and 9 cases of critical illness. All of them are isolated in designated medical institutions in Wuhan.